

Today, criminal justice officials are required to have visionary administrative and leadership abilities to meet the diverse needs of our 21ST century world.

Criminal Justice practitioners moving into the ranks, where they supervise personnel, are required to have the skills, abilities, and knowledge in the area of criminal justice administration and leadership. And, those who wish to be promoted and operate at the upper management level and rank must have a graduate degree in administration and leadership.

Our unique focus on administration and leadership prepares students to meet today's amplified expectations to lead professionally and solve problems progressively.

Goals and Course Topics

The Master of Science in Criminal Justice Administration and Leadership is an interdisciplinary degree designed to provide an enhanced level of graduate study and education for criminal justice practitioners who are entering or progressing into administration and leadership positions. This program will produce professionals who are capable of taking leadership roles in community building and community problem solving and further developing the profession of criminal justice in the 21ST century.

Students graduating with the MSCJ degree will:

- demonstrate a thorough understanding of administrative and leadership issues impacting criminal justice agencies
- acquire theoretical and applied knowledge of crime, crime analysis, criminal behavior and solutions to community crime
- demonstrate skills for conducting and assessing research and program evaluation
- develop improved competence in understanding and applying criminal justice administration and leadership principles
- progress significantly in the workplace in regards to promotion and transferability within criminal justice vocational settings

Format

This program is formatted for intense study and accelerated completion online. You will take one six week course at a time, two per term with three terms per year – which allows for degree completion in less than 20 months. Small classes allow for productive discussions and personal attention from your instructor.

Who Will Benefit From This Program

The degree program is developed for both experienced and novice criminal justice practitioners who are moving through the promotional hierarchy within their law enforcement agency.

We prefer working professionals whose official transcripts show a 3.0+ GPA in their last 60 credits of bachelor degree study. However, the Graduate Admissions Committee may provisionally admit students who earned less than a 3.0 as undergraduates after requesting additional documents and letters of recommendation from current or former professors and employers.
